

29 In which economic context is the term 'protectionism' usually applied?

- A the protection of consumers against excessive prices
- B the protection of employees against exploitation by multinational companies
- C the protection of local producers against international competitors
- D the protection of the foreign exchange rate against currency speculators